A Note from Mr. Coleman

In the American culture we are encouraged to live our lives in the extremes. In other words we should work harder and longer in order to spend and play in the lavishness of this world. Being in the extremes is good every once in a while, but I have found that living in the margins is much more rewarding.

If we build our calendar in the margins then we will have more time for rest and quietness. If we make financial decisions in the margins, then this means that we are living within our means, and will end up with more flexibility and buying power in the long run. If we work within the margins then we doing the thing that we are meant to be. Living within the margin is a gift in my perspective.

Those gifts of living in the margins are:

1. Relationships
2. Restoration
3. Joy
4. Peace

If you want a life for you and your family that has these above things, then be satisfied with living in the margins. If you want things like love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, and self-control, then live in the margins and shun the extremes. Extreme living is fleeting, while marginal living is long-lasting.

As a parent, we want to provide for our children and our family, but the thing they need the most is your time and attention. I encourage you to live in the margins, so that you will be able to nurture your children and grow them to be good people.

The Mission of BCSC ~ To ensure all students develop academically, creatively, physically, and socially into the finest version of themselves.

Chromebook and iPad Turn In

In school students: Students must bring their device to school no later than Monday, May 17th to turn in for the school year. All devices will remain in the classroom for the remainder of the year.

Virtual students: Plans are still being determined. We will email you when the details are finalized.

Mask Up, Foxes!!

We are almost to the end of the school year - let's not give up now!!

All students must wear a mask to school EVERY DAY!

More Tips to Prevent Summer Learning Loss

- Read and read some more! Visit your local library and join their summer reading program. Most libraries have them for kids and adults so it's a great opportunity for the whole family to read. You can never read too much! Just 20-30 minutes a day makes a big difference.
- Practice creative writing skills. Give your student a topic and have them write a short story. They can also make up a story of their own or write about their day.
- Drop the video games and play outside! Fresh air and sunshine are great for everyone. Playing also has many benefits: sparks creative thinking and imagination; improves communication, vocabulary, and language; promotes impulse control and emotion regulation; and it enhances social skills and empathy.
